5-Minute Mystery Shopper Script

Park: _____ Date: _____

The seller says 95% occupied with a waitlist. A five-minute call as a prospective tenant tells you if that is true. Play the role straight, keep it brief, be polite.

1. Before you dial

- ☐ Pull the advertised lot rent from the broker package and write it down.
- ☐ Note the claimed occupancy and any waitlist claim, word for word.
- ☐ Call mid-morning on a weekday, from a number the seller does not know.

2. The script

1. "Hi, I'm looking for a lot for my RV. Do you have any spots open right now?"
2. "What's the monthly lot rent, and what does that include?"
3. "Are utilities included, or do tenants pay electric and water separately?"
4. "Is there an application fee or a deposit to move in?"
5. "What are the park rules I should know about? Pets, vehicles, visitors?"
6. "I heard there might be a waitlist. Is that real, and how long is it?"
7. "If I applied today, how soon could I get a spot?"
8. "Thanks, what's your name? I'll call back once I've decided."

3. Scoring box

	Package says	They said	Match?
Quoted lot rent			Y / N
Availability vs claimed occupancy			Y / N
Waitlist: real or not			Y / N
Rules and fees mentioned			Y / N
Vibe and condition notes			Y / N

4. What a mismatch means

- Rent lower than the package: a pricing question, not fraud. Ask why the package shows more.
- Open lots but they claim 95%+: occupancy is padded. Verify with bank deposits.
- No waitlist exists: demand is softer than claimed. Reprice on real occupancy.
- Fees or rules never mentioned in the package: the fine print was hidden. Ask what else is missing.
- Park looks rough on the drive-by: condition problems the photos skipped. Walk every lot.

One mismatch is a question. Three is a pattern. Patterns get priced in or walked away from.
